

FIGURE 19B. A similar shelf mark "41," appears on the front free endpaper of a copy of Anthologia Graeca, Sive Poetarum Graecorum Lusus held in the Albert and Shirley Small Special Collections Library at the University of Virginia. This copy was originally shelved in the Rotunda. Image courtesy of the Albert and Shirley Small Special Collections Library, University of Virginia. PA3458.A2 1794, vol. 1.

Law in the university's 11th session, 1834-35.<sup>71</sup> The signs of his interaction with the catalog indicate that the volume remained at the university until at least that date. Thereafter, Lewis appears to have taken the catalog to his native Georgia, where it remained until 1916 when it was found by Frederick (Frank) Goodell in 1916 while he was serving as camp librarian at Camp Wheeler near Macon.

The provenance and textual evidence in the manuscript suggest that Douglas Wilson's conclusion that the 1823 catalog "proves to be a copy of the catalog of the library sold to Congress with the entries in Jefferson's order and corrected in his own hand" is then only one part of a fascinating story.<sup>72</sup> On the basis of the materials we present here, we propose that the 1823 Trist manuscript was actu-

71. Catalogue of the Officers and Students of the University of Virginia, Session of 1834-35 (Charlottesville: Moseley & Tompkins, 1835), 7.

72. Wilson, Jefferson's Books, 44.